

Robert Burton

Actor / Producer

SAG / AFTRA
Burbank, CA

---

---

Gender	Male
Age Range	Thirties (30-39)
Ethnicity	White/Caucasian
Representation	Yes
Voice Age	Young Adult
Voice Genre	Commercials and Promos / Documentaries and Audio Books / Character Voices / Jingles and Songs / Phone System Messages / Movies/Game Trailers

---

---

---

Bio

---

IMDB Link: <http://www.imdb.me/robertburtontheactor>

For only spending such a short time in Hollywood, Robert has come very far. As a respected voice talent who works directly for NBC, Robert has been the lead voice actor for video games, television & radio commercials, animated television shows, and has also created a small ring tone empire.

As an actor, Robert has co-starred on TV shows like "No Ordinary Family" and "Matchmakers", as well as movies like "Little Blue Pill" and "The Details." It was in his lead role as the misguided super hero on the TV series "Rat-Man" however, that helped earn him his 2nd nomination from the LA Comedy Awards in 2011.

Robert began Producing almost instinctively after his first year in Hollywood. Whenever a project came up that he was working on needed help with casting, location acquisition, or voice and video editing, Robert always stepped up to the plate. Once he started to navigate the strange realm that is IMDB by helping himself and many others to add credits, bios, trivia, and a myriad of other things that most people wouldn't even think of for their career pages, his fate was sealed... he was an Actor / Producer. High point for 2013: Robert was a Producer for the TV Pilot "Whoa!" with Linda Blair, Leslie Jordan, Dawnn Lewis, Taryn Southern, and Mark Gannt.

Also a part time comedian, Robert became a successful one in March 2012 when he won the LA Comedy Awards for "Most Hilarious Voice Over" presented by Jaime Masada at The Laugh Factory in Hollywood. Sadly, Robert no longer tours.

Robert brings his love and passion for the entertainment industry, his incredible wit & gift for comedy, his vast technology experience, and limitless potential as a talent to Red Velvet Entertainment.

---

Work History

---